

Harry Potter House Unity Scarf Machine Knitting Pattern

I used a sock weight yarn similar to Patons Kroy, each skein was approximately 50 grams/300 yards - 4 skeins black, 1 skein gold, 1 skein burgundy, 1 skein forest green, 1 skein royal blue. This scarf was knit on a Studio LK 150 with the top auto-tension dial set at 2 and the stitch tension dial on the carriage set at 2. My gauge swatch for a 4 inch square was 28 stitches and 40 rows. My completed scarf measures 8 inches wide and 72 inches in length.

To finish the scarf, I folded it in half with right sides facing, pinned along the edges, and the edges were sewn together with a sewing machine. One end was also sewn on the machine, the waste yarn removed and whip stitched by hand to secure any open stitches. I then turned the scarf right side out, re-hung the ends on the knitting machine, removed the waste yarn, and closed the end. I didn't block the scarf at any point. When the scarf was completed, I simply put in the washer and dryer and voilà!

Knit on 120 needles total. I use a set up that starts on every other needle, hang the cast-on comb on the yarn loops, return all needles to working position, and begin knitting. This is the cast on outlined in my LK 150 Instruction Book, but other cast on methods would work as well.

Knit 10 rows with waste yarn. Carriage on the left.
Reset counter to 0.

I cut the yarn at the end of each colour section and joined the new colour each time I completed a section. In retrospect, I think I could have carried the black along the side and only cut the other colours. This would have made for less ends.
